

Society of mechanism building to make people happy

- Evaluate and foster the plus aspects of the things and find significances in improving the minus aspects of the things.
- Have sympathy enough to understand the other people's sorrow, and further, make effort to find tact and idea always which make our near people happier and to give any constructive wisdom for the people around us.
- Make effort in order to distinguish clearly, by the deep and careful thinking, the universal truth which should be supported by the dignity of the human beings from the mere emotional insists of a person or a group.
- Especially, distinguish clearly between that man is moved by money and that man moves money, and make effort in order to recognize correctly between what is right and what is wrong.
- Protect and foster mutually the every little thing made, the every living creature born, and these precious and rare things and hearts.
- Make effort to have our own hope for ourselves and to let the other people have their hopes.
- Care to be able to return what we could obtain for the people we want to assist from the bottom of our heart.
- Execute good things front-loaded, and let bad things delayed. And make the good things fostered by the time.
- Make us, our near people, and our society better by these, and make it our enthusiastic dream and ever trying and chasing hope for the future to bring up this harmony among the all people.

Society of mechanism building to make people happy

This is a creed of “Society of mechanism building to make people happy”. “Society of mechanism building to make people happy” is a grass roots movement, trying to find significances in evaluating the plus aspects of the little things conscientiously with sympathy, and in constructing (systematizing) things in order to protect and foster them.
